In looking over the paper we know that the number and character of the advertisements cannot escape your attention. We take fully as much pride in our advertising columns as in those devoted to reading, because they are as interesting from a news point of view as are the reading columns. Advertising is news because it tells the sources of supplies of the needs and wants of mankind. What is best of all is that so far as we have been able to ascertain, every advertisement is reliable.

Forced to Leave Home.

Every year a large number of poor sufferers who lungs are sore and racked with coughs are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. There's a better way. Let Dr. King's New Discovery cure you at home. "It cured me of lung trouble," writes W. R. Nelson, of Calamine, Ark., "when all else failed and I gained 47 pounds in weight. Its surely the King of all cough and lung cures." Thousands owe their lives and health to it. Its positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds, Lagrippe, Asthma, Croup—all Throat and Lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at Paul Drug Co.

Wise or Otherwise.

Get the best of a man if you would see his worst side.

Unless a man lives to learn he will never learn to live.

Avoid the green and overripe when selecting fruits and friends.

Being a good cook enable many a woman to manage her husband.

It's awfully hard for some people to be both good and interesting.

The successful man doesn't boast of what he is going to do to-morrow.

The man who is on the level is often compelled to make an uphill fight.

The sting of defeat is felt long after the sweetness of victory disappears.

One nice thing about being rich is that people will listen when you want to talk.

Gilt Cleaning.

Summer is hard on gilt frames, moldings and mirrors. The humidity in the air, excessive dust and flies quickly work havoc.

The old way was to shroud all gilt in mosquito netting with the approach of spring. This is too dismal for the modern housekeeper. What she cannot put away she does not worry over, for she knows gilt, especially good gilt, is cleanable.

A cloth slightly dampened in alcohol will remove blur and dullness. This must be delicately and quickly done or ugly spots result.

Fly specks and the soil of soot can be removed by rubbing with fresh bread, or if the dirt is extra bad, with bread on which a drop or two of ammonia has been sprinkled.

Should the gilt finally get too bad regilding is possible at home with some of the Japanese liquid gills that are easily handled by the novice.

Where there are old mirrors that need regilding be careful to ask for a gilt that has a dull finish, otherwise most of the charm of the antique look is lost. The frame is distinctly cheapened by a high lustre.

Morning.

Do you know anything about the day? You don't if you do not see its beginning. Summer, winter, autumn, spring mornings, each has its own charm and beauty.

The day does not begin with the sun's rise. In the city, the milkman and the newsboy are the peep of the day. In the country, the rooster brings the tidings.

All the heat, all the rain, all the cold, all the earthquake, tornado, storm, of the day before has nothing to do with the new day. It is literally a new day. Entries are made for another race. If it be summer, the grass, the rose, the tree, carry a sparkle that was distilled over night. The gem is for the new day.

Man, woman and child, should carry nothing from yesterday into to-day except the good. Let to-day begin with a morning like nature makes.

How to Feed Your Hens.

To make a success of poultry raising follow these eight simple rules.

Plenty of pure, clean water.

Fouls should have empty crops in the morning.

Too much gain means more fat and fewer eggs.

Keep the fouls slightly hungry throughout the day.

Grain scattered in the litter is the best breakfast for the flock.

The proper time to feed at night is about an hour before going to roost.

The best plan for feeding fowls that are confined in coops is three times a day. Twice a day for range fowls.—Ex.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Too many matchmakers spoil the romance.

Life is full of pain; a few men get hanged; most men get married.

When a girl has a married sister it's a sign she is going to run her love affairs for her.

Everybody has conceit; a few succeed in concealing it.

Fat is the sort of thing women can always get unless they need it.

The way to get a woman to be polite to another is for her to hate her.

You are entitled to feel you are reasonably sane when you don't think nearly everybody else is crazy.

The harder it is to support a big family the easier it is to get one.

The way to make a woman enjoy a yatching trip is to photograph her on it.

A man always thinks it takes less brains to run somebody else's business than his own.

The woman with the smallest foot may possess the longest tongue.

One of the best ways to get engaged to a girl is to make her think some other girl is willing to.

Hobble Skirt Won't Last.

Hobble skirts will be short lived because they are not artistic, are unnatural, and too amendable to exaggeration, is what Mr. Redfern, the leading costumer of London says. At least, that is what he said the other day as he landed on our shores for a brief visit.

"The hobble skirt is disgusting," Mr. Redfern said, "and the way it has been exaggerated makes it even more so. One would hardly know the original hobble skirt if one accepted as models some one sees nowadays."

"Miss Cecil Sorrel, an English actress, appeared recently at the opera in London in a Louis XV skirt which attracted instant attention. The skirt is long and flowing, and is artistic from every point of view. That is the style which will prevail next, both in Paris and London and in New York."

All of which sounds very good, for there are few of us who are so enthusiastic about it we will weep at its departure. No matter if some of our clothes make us feel uncomfortable we will wear them if they look graceful, but the hobble skirt is neither comfortable nor graceful, so the quicker it goes, the happier we shall feel.

Prospects in the Senate.

Forced to admit the possibility of a Democratic majority in the next House of Representatives, Republican leaders are now turning their attention to prospects in the Senate. The Senate now stands, Republicans 58, Democrats 34, so that to obtain a majority of one the Democrats would have to gain 13 seats. They have recently gained one by the Maine election, leaving then 12 more legislatures to carry.

On March 3 the terms of 29 senators will expire. Five of these 29 senators are Democrats. They are Taliaferro of Florida, Rayner of Maryland, Money of Mississippi, Frazier of Tennessee and Culberson of Texas, the legislatures of all of which states are overwhelmingly Democratic. The 24 Republican senators represent states several of whose legislatures at their last sessions, were either controlled by the Republicans by a narrow margin, or contained Democratic majorities on joint ballot. For instance, in the legislature of Delaware, the Republicans had 4 majority on joint ballot, in Montana 2, in Ohio 31, in New Jersey 35; while in the legislature of Indiana the Democrats had 16 on joint ballot, in Missouri 8, in Nebraska 45, in Nevada 25. If in seven of these 24 states there should be such a political turn-over as recently occurred in Maine, the Democrats would gain their 12 senator. This is why Republican leaders are at present deeply concerned regarding the Senate.

In commenting on the prospects in the Senate an independent newspaper believes that the Democrats have more than a fighting chance of electing senators from Delaware, Indiana, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska and Nevada, while they have reasons for expecting success in California, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Wisconsin and Wyoming. While this paper does not entertain expectations of so many landslides as would be necessary to carry all these states, it does believe that the Republicans are going to have closer figuring to hold a majority in the United States Senate, than they have heretofore anticipated.—Th Grit.
